“Mrs., Brown, I never met you, but my son works with your son. I've gotten to know your son over the time our sons have worked together. You should be proud of your son, because he is a kind, gentle and loving person. He took my son under his wing and taught him some valuable things. You did well raising Will, and I know he misses you deeply. Rest assured he will continue your example. Rest In Peace Mrs. Brown your son Will, will carry on from here.

“She was the most loving caring woman I've had the pleasure of meeting and known, since HighSchool I introduced myself to her as a friend of Paul's, she really appreciated me doing that she and I always had long conversation on the phone she also was a friend to my mother. Helen and I spoke often on the phone either birthday or a holiday or just a quick hello, she often called me her play daughter, the last time she came to California she visited with me and my daughters her and her husband Willie we always loving and welcome me with open arms. Momma Brown May you RIP always I loved you like my own mom. Terri M
